BISMARCK seems to be first in the hearts of his countrymen. William may well think on this.

1881-Prof. Wm. L. Wilson-1891

Democrats in and out of Congress who are not pleased with certain features of the Wilson bill, especially those who oppose free coal, are confronting the William L. Wilson of 1884 with the William L. Wilson of 1894, Then as now Prof. Wilson was a free trader, but in that earlier day he could see some things for which now he has no eyes. Compare Prof. Wilson on the Morrison bill with Prof. Wilson on the Wilson bill:

What American industries, and this return toward a peace tariff ought to be made by even progress on a scale of justice to all.

In 1884 Prof. Wilson objected to the sudden transfer to the free list of "any one great industry." To-day he is doing his level best to transfer to the free list, and with all the suddenness of which he complained in the Mills bill, not one great industry but the four great industries of wool, iron ore, coal and lumber. It would fatigue the most devilish ingenuity to devise a scheme to inflict greater injury on the state of West Virginia.

It does not follow that a public man who changes his opinions lays himself open to the public condemnation. Change of opinion is sometimes the highest duty of the statesman, but he must justify the change of view. What conditions attached to wool, iron ore, coal and lumber in 1884 that have disappeared in 1894? Why it it less unjust to-day to place on the free list the products which comp these home industries?

Prof. Wilson said in the house the other day that it makes no difference what he thought and said ten years ago It makes a great difference, for he can show no difference in conditions to justify his change of opinion.

In 1884 he thought it wrong "to disturb or to alarm any of our great indus-tries." In 1894 he is the author and chief champion of a bill which has disturbed and alarmed all American industries. If it was impolitic and unjust to do this in 1884 it cannot be politic and just to do it in 1894.

Prof. Wilson of 1884 meets; and completely overthrows the Prof. Wilson of 1894. If the people of his district get the chance they will finish the job in November next. There is some reason to apprehend that they may not get the

The ways and means committee is having things its own way now, but porhaps some for will fly when the income tax comes before the house. A Wheeling Man's Eye For Nails.

The latest consular publication issued by the state department gives valuable suggestions on packing goods for export, in which Americans have very much to learn. One of the most interesting of these reports is by Louis S Delaplaine, jr., of this city, consul at Demarara, British Guiana, from which place he is now homeward bound.

The attention of a Wheeling man would naturally be attracted to nails, Mr. Delaplaine says that cut nails and wire nails used in British Guiana come from Germany, "and for no other apparent reason than that there has been no effort made to extend our sales in this branch of the American iron industry.'

It would seem that American nails

Consul Delaplaine remarks that "though there is very little difference between the nail market quotations of the United States and Germany, the freight rates from Germany to De-marara are almost double those asked by shippers from American ports."

American shipments having to stand much rall transportation would soon lose the comparative advantage in occan frieghts; but Wheeling nails could go all the way by water.

Mr. Connert's reception in New York was one that the President of the United States might envy. But Mr. Corbett never hauled down the American flag.

The Mansfield Blot.

Slavs and Italians, brought into the coal region round about Mansfield, near Pittsburgh, because they represented "cheap labor," indulge themselves in the burning of coal tipples and other riotous proceedings as a protest against a reduction of wages.

Minera of the higher grades, English, Irish, Welsh, German, native American, whom the others were brought in to compete with, are ready to defend property and to give their assistance to preserve the public peace. These latter say that they want higher wages, but they are American citizens and know that the destruction of property is not the way to go about it.

The men who did the rloting and those of their stripe do not come to this country to become citizens. It is a known fact that an active Anarchist propaganda is maintained among the Slavs and Italians in the Mansfield region. By this time it should be plain to the coal operators up there that they did an unprofitable thing when they brought in the low grade labor. The same lesson has been taught elsewhere.

Operators have defended themselves, saying that they did not bring such men into the country, but the fact is that they desired them and the parties of the other part in some way heard of the opening and were quick to gratify the desire. In the past decade there has been a large and plarming increase in this class of immigrants, not cheap at any price. When Congress puts on a good stiff head tax the decrease will be sudden and marked.

A DEMOCRATIC leader of the Randall type might do some business at this stage of the proceedings. There are no Randalls left in the Democratic party.

English Shoddy vs. American Cloth In all tariff discussions a great deal is said on the free trade side in praise of British manufactures and in contempt of our own. The American free trader delights to talk about American shoddy, of which he is quite sure all the clothing for all the wage-earners of the United States is made, and he knows that it is so different in England.

Vice Consul E. P. Pellet Barranquilla, Columbia, thus writes to the state department: "The importation of American dry goods is very limited. The quality is too good and the texture too heavy. Manchester "'shoddy' can be sold much cheaper."

Manchester is in England. The "Manchester school" knows a thing or two in the line of its business.

THE wool schedule has been changed again, so that free wool will go into operation August 1 and the new duties on woolens December 1. The senate may get in some changes.

A Disturber of Business.

Says the Democratic New York Sun "A vote for the Wilson bill is a vote to disturb business and to dishonor the Democratic party." If the Sun had said, to disturb business further, it would have been exactly right,

The Wilson bill has proved itself a great disturber of the peace and prosperity of this country. There is not a man or woman in the country who does not know this to be true, although some are slow to admit it and others are quick to deny it.

If the Wilson bill were out of the way the country would begin at once to pick itself up and the old-time industrial prosperity would come again.

In an address before the Yale alu Justice Brewer, of the supreme court of the United States, said that this is a Christian nation through "the hopes and purposes and faith of the people who have wrought from Plymouth Rock to the Sandwich Islands." From which it is clear that this eminent jurist does not side with President Cleveland on the Hawaiian question. Very few wise and patriotic Americans do.

Prop. Wilson advised the house that our American coal would go into Canada duty free as soon as Canadian coal should be admitted to this country on those terms, Canada having a law making this provision for reciprocity. Mr. Alderson shows Prof. Wilson that he is wrong, the Canadian law referred to having been repealed. This is awkward, especially for the Register, but that advocate of free trade will continue to advocate free coal.

"A BROOKE COUNTY FARMER" writes to the INTELLIGENCES that a Democratic friend insists that "since the McKinley tariff went into operation England has refused to buy so much of our wheat as before." In 1888 the United Kingdom took from us a fourth of all the wheat it bought, in 1892 a little more than half. In 1892 the McKinley act was in fine working order.

Avren the Jacksonville experience no English bull dog should have tried to whip an American catamount, and a fine West Virginia specimen at that, In the contest of ideas at Huntington the defender of the flag did up his antagonist in two short rounds, shorter by one than the Corbett-Mitchell affair. It's no use, and they may as well stop trying. This is a great country."

Turne have been lively times in the American house of representatives, but

A VOICE FROM PRESTON.

Some Sensible Comments from a You Republican of the Second District on t Question of a Camildate for Congress. To the Editor of the Intelligence.

Sin:-I have read with pleasure the several articles which have appeared in late issues of the Interligences from various counties of the Second congressional district concerning our next candidate for Congress. Most of them have been expressions of individual proference, but a gentleman from Taylor goes ence, but a gentleman from Taylor goes farther and presumes to speak for a separate and distinct class of Republicans, and in doing so casts serious reflections on the loyalty and honor of the Young Republicans" of the Second congressional district of West Virginia by intimating that in the event of certain men being nominated the "young Republicans" will support the party ticket, otherwise they will not, thereby placing us (for I am one of the young Republicans) in the nesition of soreheads, who, having falled in the accomplishment of some cherished personal advancement, are now pouting and threatening all sorts of calamity if things don't go just to suit our especial things don't go just to suit our especial things don't go just to suit our especial tasto.

We most emphatically object to these reflections on the genuine Republicanism of the young Republicans of the Second district.

While we may have favorites whom we would delight to honor, yet we think we voice the sentiment of "the boys in the trenches" when we assert that we will all be found unanimously and entusiastically supporting the nominee of the party's convention, working and voting with all our energy for the triumphant election of the Republican candidate for Congress, caring not as to whether he is a young or old Republican.

The young Republicans of West Vir-The young Republicans of West Virginia have not forgotten that the old Republicans were Republicans when it required a good deal more courage to be a Republican in West Virginia than it does in this year of grace 1894. And therefore they are not yet ready to countenance any unjust criticisms of the men who led their party in the past, when defeat was sure and cortain, even though some of them have been highly honored while so doing. None of those honored while so doing. None of those brave old fellows have failed to reflect brave old fellows have failed to reflect great honor and credit on their state and constituencies while occupying high and honorable positions conferred upon them by their party, and not a few of them have attained great national distinction, of which we are all justly proud. While we would recognize the nomination of a representative young Republican for Congress as a deserved and welcomed compliment from the Republican for Congress as a deserved and welcomed compliment from the party's representatives in convention, yet we are willing to be guided by the wisdom of the convention, and the young men will cheerfully support the convention's candidate, as we have a deeper interest in the success of the great principles of our great party than we have in the personal advancement of any man or set of men.

This is not the time for personal considerations in the second congressional Every element of the Republican party will be represented in the coming convention. We have men both young and old who can the Republican party will be represented in the coming convention.
